Emotional - an IBM Watson analysis of social media words

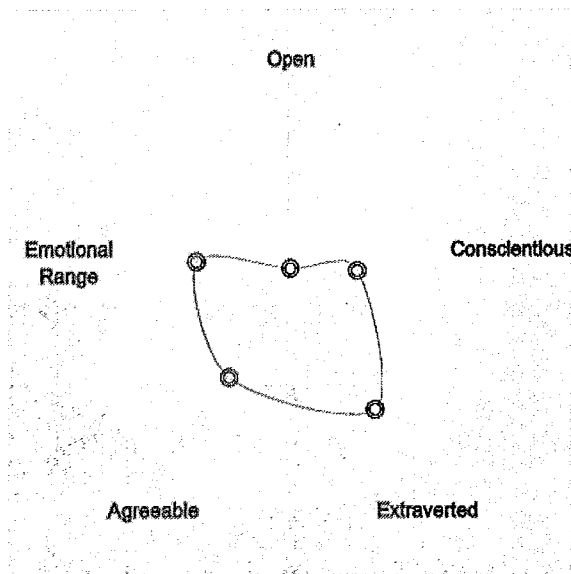

Sad: 56.35
Disgusted: 60.26
Angry: 63.08
Fearful: 58.96
Joyful: 56.18

Emotional tone is inferred from different types of emotions and feelings that people express in their language. Emotions are commonly characterized as:

- Sadness indicates a feeling of loss and disadvantage.
- Disgust is an emotional response of revulsion to something considered offensive or unpleasant.
- Anger is evoked due to injustice, conflict, humiliation, negligence, or betrayal.
- Fear is a response to impending danger. It may be a mild caution or an extreme phobia.
- Joyful indicates enjoyment, satisfaction, and a sense of well-being.

Big 5 Personality - an IBM Watson analysis of social media words

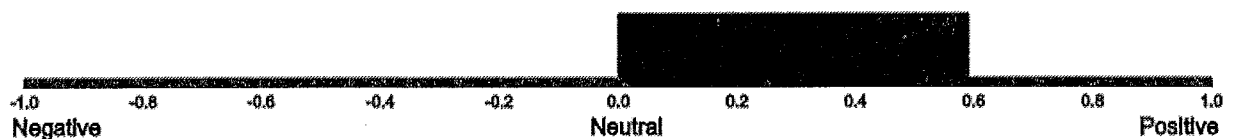

Agreeable: 49.37
Conscientious: 33.23
Extraverted: 68.04
Emotional Range: 46.85
Open: 11.30

Big 5 personality characteristics represent the widely used model for describing how a person engages with the world. The five characteristics are:

- Agreeableness is tendency to be compassionate and cooperative toward others.
- Conscientiousness is a tendency to act in an organized or thoughtful way.
- Extraverted is a person's tendency to seek stimulation in the company of others.
- Emotional Range is the extent one's emotions are sensitive to the person's environment.
- Open is the extent how open one is to experiencing a variety of activities.

Sentiment

The sentiment score indicates negative or positive attitude in the overall way a person expresses themselves through social media. Anything below a score of -0.2 is considered negative and anything above +0.2 is considered positive. Anything in between is neutral.
